BANKS WON'T TAKE US FUNDS
PROVIDENCE—Federal P. W. A. officials in Rhode Island are still looking for a bank that will accept for deposit funds advanced by the Government to municipalities, and no work on public projects can be started until some bank willing to take the Government checks is located. Local towns may be forced to go to New York to deposit Federal allocations because local banks refuse to take such funds under the regulation which requires them to guaranty the deposits by posting United States bonds as collateral.

Awakening Interest Shown In Automobiles

Evidence of an awakening interest by the American public in automobiles is graphically portrayed in a report by the Ford Motor Company that approximately 3,500,000 persons—the greatest attendance for any similar event in American history—have visited the Ford Exposition of Progress during its showing in New York and Detroit.

In New York the Exposition brought a total attendance of 2,298,023 and it was necessary to extend the showing for one week to handle crowds that thronged the Port Authority of Commerce Building at the rate of over 100,000 a day. In Detroit the Exposition, held during the latter part of October, was extended two days to take care of visitors who jammed into Convention Hall to see the vast display depicting the evolution of the automobile over the past thirty years. More than 1,200,000 persons attended the Exposition in Detroit.

Works Of Cyrus Dallin Now On Display In Hub

Exhibition Brings Praise From Well-Known Arlington Critic Who Knows Fellow-Resident Very Well—Equestrian Statues Compel Most Of Visitor's Attention—Emotional Quality In Dallin's Painting

Local residents will be interested in the special exhibition of the works of Cyrus E. Dallin now being held in the Boston Art Club on Dartmouth st. The work of the 73-year-old Oakland ave. sculptor and painter has brought him international fame. It is something for Arlington folks to be really proud. "The exhibition of the dean of New England sculptors," says A. J. Philpott, local resident in a feature article appearing in the Boston Sunday Globe, "is a tribute of respect and honor to his genius."

Writing at length on the current Dallin exhibition, Mr. Philpott says:

As a sculptor he has been internationally known for 50 years. His great statue—"The Appeal to the Great Spirit"—which stands in front of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts on Huntington ave., is one of the best known equestrian statues in the world. That is only one of many in which the American Indian has been glorified by Mr. Dallin. The country is dotted with them.

Knows American Indian

He knows, as few sculptors or painters have ever known, the sterling qualities of the North American Indian. In the course of the past 50 years he has probably done more to create a genuine respect and admiration for the Indian than any other individual.

Here in this exhibition are the proofs of all this. For here are replicas or small copies in bronze of some of his most famous Indian statues with that "Appeal to the Great Spirit" holding the place of honor in the center of the large gallery.

Cyrus E. Dallin's sculptural activities the past 50 years have not been confined wholly to North American Indians. His genius covers pretty much the whole field—portraits of all kinds, statues, monuments, medallions and symbolic compositions. And here you see many of

Skull Found By Workingman In Lexington

A skull was dug up by Michael Duffy, Lexington Sewer Department employe, while working on the sewer being constructed between Massachusetts ave and Vinebrook rd yesterday morning. The skull was found about four feet deep in a dump opposite the Colonial garage, where the residents of the neighborhood have been dumping ashes and other refuse for some time.

Supt. Albert Ross turned the skull over to the police. It will be examined to determine whether it is, as the authorities are inclined to suspect, a discarded skull which belonged to a doctor or medical student or whether there was a more sinister reason for its presence where found.

Sharp Drop In Construction In Past Year

Building Activities In Arlington Show Decline For Year 1933—Follows General Trend All Over Country—New Church Is Most Valuable Piece Of Work Started—Permits Amount To $505,185.50—Decline Of Hundred Thousand Dollars Over 1932—Peak Year Was In 1925

Building construction in Arlington took another nose dive during the past year, according to figures revealed in the office of William Mason, inspector of buildings. The condition is not alarming however, since building activities have slumped generally throughout the country.

During the year 1933, the value of construction undertaken here amounted to $505,185.50 a drop of about a hundred thousand dollars over the previous year, 1932, when permits issued amounted to $604,286. The peak year was in 1925. Since then there has been a steady decline in construction. In 1931, the total value of new construction was $1,781,485, over a million dollars more than in the year just ended.

A total of 244 building permits were issued during 1933, sixty-eight of these being for one-family houses. Only one two-family house was built here last year. The permits issued were as follows:

1. Be kind and helpful to others.
2. Look both ways when crossing streets.
3. Always be kind to dumb animals.
4. Write a letter to Daddy Sunshine, or have Mother or Dad write it for you, every now and then.
5. Try to bring a "Ray of Sunshine" into the lives of your parents and others every day of the week and every week of the year.

These rules are not very difficult for good girls and boys to keep. Most of them are kept by them anyway.

Mail your letters and stories to Daddy Sunshine, in care of this paper. He will answer them in the Daddy Sunshine column.

Write on but one side of the paper, and place your age and address on the letter after your name. Give the day, month and year of your birth.

To join the club all you have to do is promise to keep the rules—and keep them.

SUNSHINE THIRTY-FOUR

When "Newt" was not in the play
In the Rose Bowl game
Stamford seemed to have its way
His team was not the same.

When again he came back in
Then we were satisfied
Newt's team then would surely win—
Could not we thought be tied.

Sure enough the final score
Showed that the Lions won.
Honor came to us once more—
Newt Wilder, Medford's son.

Thirty-four came in with cheer
At least in football's realm,
May it be a happy year
With Sunshine at the helm,

Sunshine such as Daddy tries
Each evening to impart.
Efforts that are truly wise
For every mind and heart.

Seasons have their sports and joys—
But when each day is done
The Kiddie Klub for girls and boys
Provides instructive fun.

ABOUT WASHINGTON

Dear Daddy Sunshine:
George Washington, hero of American independence and first president of the United States, was born in Westmoreland County, Virginia, 1732; died at Mount Vernon, 1799. He was the great-grandson of John Washington, an Englishman, who emigrated in 1675; and the son of Augustine Washington, a substantial farmer, being the eldest of a second family.

His education was limited to the elementary subjects, but he acquired a fair knowledge of mathematics and surveying, chiefly by self study, and, when his widowed mother prevailed upon him to abandon the idea of entering the British navy, he adopted surveying as a profession.

His military career commenced at the age of nineteen, when he was appointed adjutant general of Virginia militia; and before long he showed in operations against the French that he united in eminent degree the qualities belonging to a successful commander. He died, December 14, 1799. His last words were, "I die hard, but I am not afraid to go."

A pal,
Joseph O'Neil

As the birthday of George Washington draws near, we all are reminded of the patience and the courage of the "Father of Our Country," the first president of the United States, George Washington, a man of more than ordinary intelligence and foresight, will live for all time in the minds of every American. Thank God at every critical time in the history of our country, we have been fortunate in having a president capable of surmounting all the difficult problems that face him. Washington was the first. Since then America has been faced a number of times with situations that demanded the utmost of the man who held the destinies of the nation in his hand, and has never been found wanting. President Roosevelt today guides the destinies of our country. Let's place our faith in him, another "George Washington," and we cannot go wrong. Your letter Joseph, deserves a ticket, and Daddy Sunshine will be glad to present you one when you have time to visit him at his office.

Tufts Tops B. U. 32-19—Frosh Win Too, 31-29

In an exceedingly rough contest, the undefeated Tufts varsity basketball team continued its victorious path by annexing a 32-19 victory over Boston University Saturday evening at the Tufts gymnasium. In a preliminary game, the Tufts Freshmen University first year quintet, 31-won their opening game of the season by defeating the Boston 29. Dancing followed the game in the intramural gymnasium under the auspices of Ivy, junior class honorary society.

In the varsity game, Tufts took the lead at the start and was never headed. B. U., with a weak team, never threatened. High scoring honors went to Tony Radvilas, Tufts center, who is only a sophomore, annexing 11 points. Jake Yagjian was the color of the game, the Medford boy receiving a tremendous ovation as he left the floor late in the fourth period after a sterling game. For Boston University, Elmer Buzzell another Medford product, and Blondy Seigal were outstanding defensively.

In the freshman game, Tony Spath, freshman football ace, was the outstanding player, netting 11 points for high scoring honors of his team, while Dave Snedden, B. U. frosh captain, annexed 14 points of his team's total.

Hit By Auto As He Sobers Off Court Is Told

Norman T. Sjoberg, Everett, was given a suspended term of six months in the house of correction on a non-support charge by Judge Davis at court, after his divorced wife said he had given her no money for the support of their child since last August, when he got out of jail.

The defendant said he had two accidents, having been struck by autos, since then and he expected a settlement in one case next week and would make good financially with his wife.

Probation Officer Kelley said that the first time Sjoberg had been sober in six months he was struck by an auto, and Mr. Kelley believed that Sjoberg had been drunk most of the time since. Lieut. French of Everett said Sjoberg hung out with drunks most of the time.

Frank J. Dunbar, Malden, drunk, state farm, suspended, Gerald J. Murray, Malden, same offense, one month suspended and a previously suspended term of one month allowed to stand. He claimed that he had a job to go to.

On Joy Ride Charge
William L. Taylor, Jr., Chelsea, was charged with using an auto owned by John A. Hansen, 121 Glendale st., Everett, without authority, and also with operating an auto in Everett without a license and both cases were continued to the juvenile court.

One Line After Another

By Governor Cradock

Reference in this column recently to some of the men and firms who occupied the front and center of the business stage in Medford's Yesterdays brought many interesting reactions from readers of The Mercury, and the request for more seems to justify a continuance of the topic in the issue of today. As was noted in the introduction to the first presentation of the subject, the text is taken from a circular which has been retrieved from a filing envelope under the index, "Medford Business Men," which was distributed throughout the town 40 years ago.

Last week we reviewed the elaborate descriptions of ten firms of those other days. There comes first at hand in writing this column the name of the Irving House, William H. Babb, proprietor: "West Medford has long felt the need of a public house where transients could be suitably accommodated, and also where a good class of permanent boarders could find a home. Mr. Wm. H. Babb, dry goods and fancy dealer on Harvard ave., recognized the demand, and secured a location on Irving st (between Alkston and Brooks sts), and opened the Irving House, where he is prepared to accommodate transients with meals or lodgings, and at the same time afford them the comforts of a home. He has made ample arrangements for permanent boarders, his charges are moderate, and everything is kept neat and clean, while the table is provided with an abundance of well cooked food."

J. N. Cowin & Co., Successors to F. E. Chandler & Co., "dealers in coal, wood, hay, straw and grain. Wood sawed and split to order. No. 27 Riverside ave. Opp. Engine House. That an abundant and reliable supply of cheap coal is absolutely necessary to success in manufacture under existing and prospective conditions is a fact too obvious to require demonstration, and as this is the case it follows that J. N. Cowin & Co. is of paramount importance to Medford and the adjacent country, for Messrs. Cowin & Co. and the successors of F. E. Chandler & Co. deal in coal and wood of all kinds."

And there was a rival—"COAL! COAL! COAL! Now is the time to buy your coal for winter use. It is to your interest to trade with Joseph Hellen, dealer in the best grades of family and steam coals. Hard, soft, wood in stick or worked as ordered. Also dealer in hay, grain and straw. Wharf and office 65 Riverside ave." (Tragedy followed the name of Joseph Hellen, His coal wharf was part of the property taken years ago by the Commonwealth for a projected parkway along the east bank of the Mystic River out of Medford Square. He sued the State, lost all the money he had as well as the suit, and committed suicide.)

Medford Steam Laundry, J. D. Bruce, Prop., No. 38 Salem st. "The mechanical equipment of the Medford Steam Laundry conducted by Mr. J. D. Bruce, is first-class in every respect, it including the most improved type of laundry machinery and being sufficiently extensive to enable all work to be done promptly as well as thoroughly, while it is so carefully and skillfully handled that all injury to fabrics is avoided, and in this connection it is pertinent to note that no injurious bleaching fluid is used in this establishment and that all danger of rotting the most delicate goods is obviated. So careful and businesslike a policy ought to receive substantial recognition from the public, and, as a matter of fact, it does."

F. H. Lovering, groceries and provisions, 206 High st. West Medford. "Many a housekeeper has been looking for just such an establishment as that carried on by Mr. F. H. Lovering, and we take pleasure in commending this enterprise to such inquirers for we know that this gentleman's methods are bound to please. This enterprise was founded in 1876 by Lovering Bros. (Lewis H. Lovering and Francis H. Lovering) and they were succeeded in 1881 by the present proprietor. He is a native of Maine, and has a large circle of friends in this vicinity. The premises occupied comprise one floor 80x85 feet in dimensions (part of the present Wilber store), and the stock on hand is not only large, but unusually varied."

W. P. Treet, "Dry Goods, Gents' Furnishings, and Small Wares, Medford Square. The Gentleman whose card we print above is one of the oldest and best known merchants in Medford, he having founded his present business over a quarter of a century ago. Mr. W. P. Treet, who is a Maine man by birth, inaugurated the enterprise, with which he is now identified, in 1866, and has managed it with such ability that his store has long been known as one of the most desirable establishments in the vicinity at which to procure anything in the line of ladies' and children's hosiery, gloves, corsets, neckwear, ribbons, veilings, linen collars and cuffs, underwear and furnishings generally; also Gentlemen's neckwear, laundered and unlaundered shirts, hosiery, gloves, shirts, suspenders, overalls, flannel shirts, etc."

Withington Bakery, "Established 1825, W. S. Barker & Son, Props., manufacturers and wholesale and retail dealers in crackers, bread, cake and pastry. No. 20 Salem St. Branch, No. 14 High t., West Medford. It is considerably more than half a century since the enterprise was started, it having been inaugurated in 1825 by Mr. Henry Withington, since which date it has been popularly known as the Withington Bakery. The bakery is fitted up with many improved facilities which are operated by steam. No expense is spared in so fitting up the premises so as to accomplish the best results and as the materials used are of the best, the articles produced are bound to be entirely satisfactory." (It is to be noted with regret that the advertisement did not mention the famous "Medford Cracker," a product of the old Withington Bakery that carried Medford's name all over the world).

Lastly (though there are many names in this nearly half a century old circular) appears the name of C. H. Day, "Hack, Boarding and Livery Stable, No. 21 Salem st. (Where Wheeler's garage now is) Particular attention paid to boarding horses. One of Medford's popular and well-patronized establishments. In all its appointments it is probably the best Stable between here and Boston. It was established about 1872, and Mr. Day is a veteran in the business. He keeps good roadsters."

Who wants to be a MOTHER HUBBARD?

OLD MOTHER HUBBARD found her cupboard bare, but that isn't true of New England women if the experience of one large grocer in Boston is any guide.

This grocer reports that his customers purchased 30,000 more grocery articles last month than during the same month a year ago.

That means more orders for the factories, more wheels turning, more farm products consumed, more jobs. All of which lead to better times.

The perfect housekeeper has a well-stocked pantry shelf. Canned goods for example. The new packs are in, and many emergency shelf foods—always available in your home.

It's no longer clever to boast of having so little—money or things about the house. There's a surge of pride in the modern woman as she shows her well-stocked pantry—her new breakfast set—her new refrigerator—her newly painted bathroom, etc.

It's all in good taste to boast of helping recovery.

Heavy construction is being maintained at a high level by continual activity in the award of road contracts says Engineering News Record, and in the week ended November 20 the value of heavy contracts was $37,190,000, the second highest weekly total this year.

Bank clearings in leading American cities for the week ended November 23 showed an increase of 22.5 per cent over the same period of last year.

Wholesale prices during the week ended November 18 reacted a new high and were at the best level since August, 1931, according to the U. S. Commissioner of Labor Statistics.

Reports from more than 1500 J. C. Penney Co. stores for the first 10 days of November show that the company has enjoyed one of the greatest period increases in business of the year, volume continuing substantially ahead of last year. It was stated by Carl C. Sims, president of the company.

Three greater Boston firms have been awarded contracts for 758,000 yards of flannel shirting for the quartermaster's department of the U. S. Army.

Dollar sales of Continental Can Co. in the 4th quarter up to November 10 were 30% greater than in the same period last year.

THE BATTLE OF BOTTLES

What might be termed the "battle of the bottles" got into full swing at Washington during the week before prohibition repeal became an actuality. The fight is between the Federal government and the liquor manufacturers. The distillers came forward with a code of their own making, saw it at once discarded. It was replaced with a code drawn up at the President's suggestion, which gave a very different slant to the picture than manufacturers had hoped. Under it a government corporation would be formed to handle the entire wholesale liquor business. Provisions include:

A Federal Alcohol Control Administration, with czar-like power over the industry, which would rule without liquor representation; complete control over production and distribution through a quota system; authority to fix and regulate prices; no additions to existing distilling capacity could be built without a certificate of necessity from the Administration; an agreement with the Secretary of Agriculture to pay "parity" prices, fixed by him, for raw materials used in distilling.

The liquor industry had anticipated some sort of Federal control, but they had not thought it would be so relentless as this. Particularly distasteful to them was the provision concerning plant additions—practically every major distiller is in the midst of expansion. Plants are partly finished, which may have to be scrapped if the code goes into effect. Their protests found small sympathy at Washington; it was intimated in some quarters that if they didn't like it they were liable to be met with a plan for a gigantic Federal sales system.

In the meantime, the states have been rushing plans to control sales within their borders. Influence of the Rockefeller report is seen in many bills; there is strong sentiment in favor of eliminating private profit so far as the sales end is concerned. Bulk of states which have definitely passed laws allow sales of beer and wine in restaurants and hotel rooms; about half allow all drinks to be sold in this manner. Minors and known drunkards are forbidden to buy or to be sold to. Drug, grocery stores and hotels and restaurants will be allowed to sell in bulk for the most part. Montana will operate its own liquor stores, and Oregon will probably do likewise. Nevada will permit local control; Reno will have the old-time saloon without closing hours. Most of the states have yet to make definite regulations, but this indicates the trend of thought on the matter.

Cost of liquor is a burning subject. The hope is expressed that it will be possible to sell legal whiskey and gin, of fair quality, for $1.50 or $2.00 a quart within a short time. If prices are much bigger than this, it is believed that the bootlegger and the speakeasy will have little trouble in keeping their trade.

PASS NEWS SECRECY LAW

Last week the New York State Society of Newspaper Editors launched a move to protect newspaper confidences by State law. This week two New York newspapermen are defendants in a contempt action because they refuse to disclose the source of a news story charging the shaking down of a news dealer.

A law of this sort is imperative. New Jersey and Maryland protect newspapermen from betraying confidences. In other states similar bills are now pending. The New York State legislature meets in a short while. It is earnestly hoped that the bill sponsored by the New York editors will be introduced in order that greater freedom be given reporters and editors in their endeavor to publicize conditions which are cankers in the side of society.

Too often the Damoclean sword of unfavorable publicity hangs threateningly over the heads of those who know but will not tell the public. If they are assured, through a State law, that those in whom they confide will not be placed on the rack and thumb-screwed into divulging a news source, there is little doubt that much material of interest to the public will be unearthed.

As matters stand many editors and reporters have gone to jail rather than tell a story out of school. Why should they? After all, nobody wants to be a martyr.—Newsdom,

Mix French Wines—War Debts

SHIPMENT OF FRENCH WINE

Rep. Fred Britten

Sen. William E. Borah

That Congress is determined to oppose any Administration measure to settle the war debts in return for trade concessions or by any other means than payment in hard cash became apparent in the capital, if the approval that greeted Representative Fred Britten's designation of France as a "nation of cheaters and defaulting misers" is anything to judge by. Britten denounced France during the House debate on the liquor tax bill, in the course of which he proposed a complete embargo on French wines and liquors until such time as that nation foregoes its debt-defaulting policy. Simultaneously in the Senate, William E. Borah, Senator from Idaho, rushed a resolution through the Upper House, calling on Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau for a full report on sums paid and defaulted by debtor nations and laying the groundwork to forestall any Administration attempt to settle the debts without the approval of

Did You Ever Stop To Think

by
Edson R. White

The other day in another state I met one of our lawmakers and had quite a chat with him.

He, like most lawmakers, has troubles of his own and the main one seemed to be how to get re-elected. However, he talked with the light of wisdom in his eyes, although at times cold shivers seemed to run down his spine when he told about bills he had voted for.

This lawmaker appeared to be living in a world of men he does not understand. He is under constant pressure of the need to express himself intelligently to the folks at home, for the folks at home ask plain questions that require plain answers, which he found hard to make.

It seems that when he was attending a session of lawmakers he listened and was moved by a concord of sweet words. He was stirred and elevated by great thoughts and stories beautifully told, and voted for more taxes the way he was told to vote. He became a rubber stamp. The folks at home soon caught on and told him they were not interested in rubber stamps; that he was sent there to reduce taxes—not increase them. Evidently his time is short and, oh, how he wants to hold his job!

It's Always A Good Policy For A Lawmaker To Listen To The Folks At Home.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Spicy Baked Ham Slice

1 large slice smoked ham
1 1-2 2 lbs; about 3-4 inch thick.
1 1-3 cups ginger snaps
1-2 cup raisins
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1 1-4 cups water
Put ham in casserole. Crumble ginger snaps and mix with raisins and orange rind. Spread mixture over ham. Pour water over all. Cover and bake in a moderate oven 375 degrees F. for 45 minutes. Uncover and brown. Six portions.

If a tablespoon of coffee is added to gravy, it makes the gravy brown immediately, without leaving any suggestion of a coffee taste.

Almost $5,000,000 Home Owners' Loans Now In Bay State

Spread throughout the State, the Massachusetts Agency of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation has closed 1161 loans for the benefit of distressed home owners, as of the close of business December 30, 1933. These new relief mortgages total $4,803,106 and bonds of the Corporation have been paid out to cooperating mortgagees after discharge of the mortgages formerly held by them. State Manager Charles F. Cotter reports that in closing this business cash payments have been made to cities and towns of the State for real estate taxes to the amount of $314,787, or over 6 1-2 percent of the total volume. The average new relief mortgage amounts to $4,137.

On the same date, throughout the State, there were, in addition, 2637 tentatively approved loans, totaling approximately $9,850,000.

Savings Bank Men Pleased At State Plan

"The mutual savings banks of Massachusetts are well pleased with the plan of Deposit Insurance outlined in the Commission report", said Carl M. Spencer, President of the Savings Banks Association of Massachusetts, in commenting upon the report of the Special Commission of the Legislature.

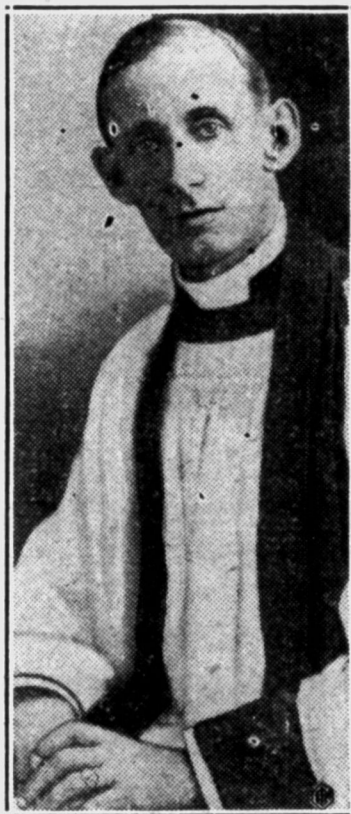

"We have deposits in the mutual savings banks of this state in excess of two billion dollars," continued Mr. Spencer, "and this represents the savings of almost three million people. During the last four years, when the banking system has been under the severest strain of all time, only two mutual savings banks were closed, and both of these have since reopened on their own corporate structures. During the entire 117 years that mutual savings banks have been in existence the total loss to depositors has been less than two and one-half million dollars. When this is contrasted with the heavy losses and frozen deposits experienced in the banks of the country as a whole in the recent past, it is clearly seen why our Massachusetts savings banks are reluctant to join in a country wide plan of insurance which includes other types of banks."

AND — THE PUBLIC PAYS
AND PAYS — AND PAYS

Decline of postal business for the third successive year and a postal deficit of $112,374,892 are reported to the President by Postmaster-General Farley.

"Even before the depression began," Farley said in his annual report, "the period of constantly increasing postal receipts was approaching an end, the records of the department clearly indicating it was probably due to changed methods of advertising and merchandising."

Saying the Postoffice Department was "the largest single employer of labor in the country, if not in the world," the Postmaster-General reported the number of employees as 235,573, a drop from the peak of 254,946 reached Dec. 31, 1929, nearly 19,000 less help.

Expenditures for the year were $700,006,266, a decline of $92,716,277. Revenues totaled $587,631,864, a decrease of $540,558. The gross deficiency of revenues was $112,374,892, compared with $205,550,611 the previous year.

An attack on the deficit was made through substantial reductions for transportation, rent, supplies and equipment, but the principal saving was made in expenditures for personal services.

Approximately $80,000,000 was saved in pay rolls with $58,000,000 of it attributable to reductions through the economy legislation.

The remainder was through normal reduction in personnel.

Pointing out that $45,264,945 was paid in shipping and commercial aviation subsidies and $15,335,035 worth of mail service was performed free for Congress and the government, Farley said reduction of those amounts made $50,633,605 the true deficit attributable to postal transactions alone. A year ago the deficit on that basis was $152,246,188.

Increase in revenues due to the three-cent postage rate was estimated at $75,000,000.

As business conditions improve, Farley told the President, the department believed it could look forward to a gradual increase in the volume of the mails and with continuation of present postage rates an increase of $15,000,000 over expected receipts of the present year may be looked for next year.

YES, THE MOTORISTS
SHOULD AGAIN BE SOAKED!

Exaction of a fee from automobile owners, to be paid to the city for the privilege of parking cars on public ways, is a suggestion included in the annual report of the Boston Traffic Commission for 1933.

No details as to whether citizens should pay a quarter to the officer on the block or whether tickets would be sold at City Hall, are included in Traffic Commissioner Joseph A. Conry's report, which simply says:

"If indiscriminate parking is to be permitted for unlimited periods in the streets of Boston, it would be only right and equitable to our taxpayers that the city should receive an income for the space occupied, and it is recommended that such legislation be enacted."

READING CAMP NOT YET
OPEN TO HOMELESS IDLE

A word of warning should be given to some of the homeless transients who have heard that a place was being fitted up for them at Camp Curtis Guild, the State rifle range, in Reading. During the past few days several have applied at the camp only to be sent away again.

The work of putting the camp in readiness for the men has only just begun and will not be finished for a matter of two, and possibly three, weeks. Moreover, no men will be accepted on application at the camp. Registration offices will be opened, in Boston, Lawrence, Worcester and Springfield, where applicants must register, and those found suitable for the work here will be sent here.

WORKS OF CYRUS DALLIN NOW ON DISPLAY IN HUB

the fruits of his broad, artistic genius, in marble, bronze and plaster. It is a vivid presentation of one man's active, artistic life.

His Paul Revere

It begins with a large photograph of the model of the equestrian statue of Paul Revere which he made 50 years ago for the City of Boston, and for which the city appropriated $5000 toward a fund of $25,000 which a special committee of prominent citizens was to raise at the time.

Dallin was only 23 years old at that time. He won the commission in open competition with such sculptors as the late Daniel Chester French and Thomas Ball. Mayor Hugh O'Brien signed the contract for the statue, but nothing further has been done about it from that day to this. It was a heart-breaking experience for the young sculptor.

The whole story is one that doesn't reflect very much credit on those who were most actively concerned in the erection of a monument to Paul Revere, 50 years ago. However, there is some hope that the statue will be erected. A new committee is being formed for the purpose.

Tragic as that experience was for the young sculptor, this exhibition proves that it didn't crush his spirit. For no sculptor whose spirit had been broken could ever do the work that he has done the past 50 years. He was too big to be crushed.

Dallin As Painter

The thing which will astonish most people in this exhibition is the group of paintings. Few people have known that Cyrus E. Dallin was a painter as well as a sculptor. Not that he has carried painting to any such degree of perfection as he has sculpture. He has not. Still, these paintings—all of them landscapes—are mighty interesting and reveal a side of his nature which could not easily be expressed in sculpture—his love of out-door nature in her various moods and his love of color.

With him painting has been a recreation which complements his sculpture. He calls these pictures "Third Dimension Paintings," but it is rather difficult to see wherein they differ from regular landscape paintings. Here and there it is possible to get a suggestion of spectroscopic vision, but it is merely a suggestion.

There is an outstanding quality in every one of these paintings—an emotional quality—a quality of deep feeling and love for the scene itself. They show something of the poetic side of his nature—the joy he finds in communing with nature.

If he had not been a sculptor he would surely have been a great landscape painter. There are a few winter scenes here that would have thrilled Twachtman, and there are some charming little summer landscapes that would have thrilled such men as Enneking or Davis.

Sculptures Outstanding

These paintings not only serve to make a colorful setting for the sculptures but they afford a certain satisfaction to the admirers of Dallin because they reveal him as an all-around artist. Nearly all the greatest sculptors were also painters, and there were a number of great painters who were also commendable sculptors.

Posterity will form its judgments of Cyrus E. Dallin on his sculptures rather than his paintings. The reasons are right here.

Aside from his Indians let us look at some of his other sculptures. Of course some of the Indian sculptures are classic—will remain so for all time.

But take that marble bust of Miss Cushing and look at that for a moment—superb in pose, in character and in the quality of refinement which it seems to breathe. That is a great bit of work.

How much of intimate feeling as well as character there is in "My Father" and "My Mother." Others along this same line are "My Boys" and the relief portrait of "Julia Ward Howe."

Great Figures

How much of suggestion and character there are in the figures of "John Brown," "Lincoln," and "Pere Marquette." What a virile figure is that of the young doughboy, "Captured but Not Conquered."

There is a large model for an equestrian statue of George Washington here, which for dignity and a full suggestion of the character of this great man has not been equaled. Here also is a large model for an equestrian statue of Gen. Edwards which will challenge the attention of all who knew that genial, vigorous, radiant personality. Another notable equestrian model is that of Gen. Howard.

Perhaps there is nothing that shows the versatility of this artist better than the classical monument, "Alma Mater," the original of which is at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo. That group touches exactly the right emotion.

How delightful are those little busts of his grandchildren, and the bas reliefs and even "Our Cat."

It is a notable exhibition and will be open, free to the public.

Three Links To Meet Here

The Mystic Valley Three Links association will hold its next meeting in the quarters of the Bethel Lodge of Odd Fellows, Arlington on Wednesday, January 31. A mock trial in which members will take part will be enjoyed and a collation will be served.

696 Plumbing and 519 Gas permits were issued in 1933.

The fees collected were as follows:

244 building permits $ 699.
696 plumbing permits 981.75
519 gas permits 259.50

$1,946.25

This is encouraging as far as the revenue to the Town is concerned and is due to the fact that a larger number of permits were issued during 1933 than 1932. The most important permit issued during the past year was for the new St. John's Church which is now being built at the corner of Pleasant st and Lombard rd.
